PROTECT WATER QUALITY, PUBLIC HEALTH AND THE MARINE ENVIRONMENT

- Untreated Sewage discharges can contain disease-causing bacteria and viruses. Swimmers, surfers and others can become ill when they swallow or come in contact with polluted water.
- Untreated Sewage discharges can contaminate shellfish beds and make you sick if you eat raw or poorly cooked shellfish.
- Untreated sewage discharges can kill fish by taking oxygen from the water when sewage decays.

DISPOSE OF SEWAGE PROPERLY

- Equip your boat with a sewage treatment device or holding tank for toilet wastes. Empty your tank at a shore side pumpout station.
- Use a portapotty if you don't have an installed toilet. Empty wastes at a dump station on shore.
- Never dump raw sewage into navigational waters of the U.S., a region that includes all California inland and coastal waters up to three miles from shore.

REPORT BROKEN PUMPOUTS TO FACILITY OPERATORS.
